

PROJECTS..... Timber Frame Repairs

Any timber frame repair will begin with a careful study of the damaged components and, where the building is listed, a drawing for discussion with the local conservation department. Historic fabric should not be removed unless absolutely necessary. In two of the examples illustrated here, the original sections of frame had previously been replaced in modern brickwork and softwood. These were reconstructed in green oak with traditionally pegged joints.

